SPORTS*TEAM GOLF PLAY AT MAUNALUA

Eight enthusiastic golfers motored to Maunaloa yesterday, and pulled off a four-ball sweepstakes tournament which provided fair golf and excellent sport. George Angus and Frank Halstead proved the winners, defeating Harold Giffard and Laurence Redington in the final.

Best ball and aggregate of the teams were counted, making a possible two points for each hole. This arrangement proved very satisfactory, as it kept everyone in the game at every hole until the last put was down.

In the morning Giffard and Redington beat Frank Armstrong and John Evans 5 and 3, and Angus and Halstead won from Tom Gill and F. W. Klobahn 4 and 2. The afternoon play was productive of some very streaky golf, all the players having trouble with the putting greens, and spoiling what might have been fairly creditable scores by poor work near the cup. The Angus-Halstead combination secured a big lead on their opponents and were 8 up and 10 to play (points) going to the fourteenth hole. Giffard and Redington came to life long enough to cut this down to 3 and 4, but Angus and Halstead took two points at the seventeenth, clinching the match. The losers of the morning play played a consolation match in the afternoon, which was won by Gill and Klobahn.

The fair green at Maunaloa is in first-class shape, the lies being better on the whole than at the Country Club. The putting greens, however, are very lumpy, and the ball will not travel true. A ball lying just off the green is likely to get a bad kick if the player attempts to pitch it up to the pin, while if he tries to run it up, the stiff grass is pretty sure to deflect it. It's a toss up, with heads on both sides of the coin.

PROF. PERRET ON VOLCANOES

Professor Frank A. Perret was a returning passenger from the Big Island Saturday. He comes direct from his study of Kilauea, and is very enthusiastic over what he has learned about volcanoes. Heretofore the scientists of the world have held a number of theories regarding volcanoes, and it has only been by his recent observations that the theories have been confirmed. He thinks the discoveries he has made are of the utmost value to all mankind.

The professor states that already the volcano of Kilauea is the talk of the world through the fact that an observatory is in a fair way to be established at the crater. Speaking of volcano matters, Prof. Perret says: "Among other things it has been proposed by an Italian volcanologist that this crater shall be made an antipodal station to South Africa. It is not necessary that the South African station also be located at an active volcano, as the observation of seismic disturbances is just as important. "Certainly Kilauea is a true volcano," he added in answer to a question, "fundamentally the same as Aetna, Vesuvius or any other, the action, shape of the cone and other matters, where individual volcanoes vary, being due to the different quality of the lava and other related causes. The lava in Kilauea, after a long continual downfall, is again rising, gradually, but surely. The gradual dropping of the surface of the lava came to an end about September."

MEN'S CLASS IS WELL ATTENDED

The men's class of the Methodist church was largely attended yesterday, there being quite a number of new faces there which is encouraging to those who have the class in hand.

"Christian Science" was the subject of a most interesting address by Mr. Robbins, the founder of the class. There were a number of others who gave short talks on the subject.

The last Sunday of every month will be devoted to a discussion on some important subject suggested by a member of the class. The next for consideration will be "Jesus Christ the Socialist," the date of which will be announced later.

MANDOLIN CLUB COMING HERE

The official paper of the University of California states that the Mandolin Club of that institution will make a tour of Hawaii during the holiday season. There are fifteen members in the club, and it is stated that the intention is to give five or six evening concerts in Honolulu.
